About College Bound Membership

This unique service offered through the Texas Junior Golf Tour is designed to make the recruiting and scholarship process easier to navigate. CBM is a comprehensive program that is specifically designed to maximize the experience of the TJGT Staff which is comprised of former college coaches and parents of former/current collegiate golfers. TJGT staff combines over 30 plus years of collegiate golf experience, NCAA, NAIA, NJCAA championship alumni, Academic All-Americans, numerous AJGA & USGA events as well as professional golf including "Q" School, Mini-Tours, Nationwide & PGA/LPGA Tours. There simply is no substitute for "first hand experience" in the recruiting and overall collegiate experience. CBM is designed to mentor players and parents through every aspect of obtaining an athletic or academic scholarship. In the past 12 years, TJGT has produced over 3500 collegiate alumni. Our passion is to see every member obtain a college education. We believe a college education is a key to a successful future. Therefore, a high priority is placed on informing and educating each CBM member through various forums and media technologies including webinars, podcasts, Q & A sessions, email & phone support as well as in person meetings at tournaments.. This program is designed to be a yearly mentoring program that will produce results. We are partnering with your family to obtain success. Quite simply, other programs are charging as much as $5000 per year and $1250 for a one day program/ initial assessment. TJGT has combined the entire program individually for $200 per year or $375 which combines playing privileges with tour membership benefits in 70+ events. This investment will return a worthwhile reward in the form of college scholarships for your greatest asset: Your Children. You will be empowered to make wise and informed decisions regarding one of the most important decisions in the life of a young man/woman: The College Decision.

"Dave & Coach,

To give you guys an idea of how much help the CBM program has been, we'll give you some history on our search for a golf program and scholastic match. Brandon is our only child, and we had no idea how to search schools and find a fit for him. Also, at the time he was a junior in high school, we had no idea we were behind the curve. Before the CBM program, we had talked with a local lady that was starting a program to assist junior golfers. At the time, the fee (which was a few thousand dollars) seemed expensive, but we considered it. Then with the downturn of the economy, my company was hit hard and we instituted a pay cut across the board...Pretty much we had to scratch the expensive help from the list. About the same time the CBM program came online and we jumped on it! We cannot imagine how we would have navigated things without the program and the help of both of you.

After talking to Coach Monzingo and following his directions, we created a bio, results, tournament schedule, and swing videos. We sent these to Coach, made a few modifications he suggested and began sending things out...We quickly found out that, just as Coach Monzingo said, the coaches are much more interested in seeing information from the kids and not from a company or individual representing them. We even had a few tell us they didn't even look at the bulk mail packages because they want the kids to know where their information is going and to be invested in their own future...

Brandon contacted at least two dozen programs in his search after going down the list of important items for player and parents that the CBM program provided...Even if the coaches didn't have a spot for him on their team, they were impressed with the format of his package... All of a sudden Brandon had several choices available to him, even though we had started late and with a financial handicap we had not planned on. Brandon had narrowed his choice down to two schools... He made his final decision this week and decided on Texas Lutheran University.

There is so much we learned in the process that we would love to share with others, it really could fill a book! The CBM program not only saved us a lot of stress, but has provided opportunities and financial benefits that make the CBM fee the best money we have ever invested by several hundred times over.

Thanks again for everything."

How early do college coaches really start looking at potential recruits?

What do college coaches look for in a potential recruit on the course and in the classroom? What is the first step to contacting a college coach and when?

What tools are available to find their information, and what information do they want from me? If a coach is interested in me, when should I visit the campus, negotiate an offer, and commit? Is this school a good fit for me? How do I get a golf scholarship? How can I get a larger scholarship? It's near the end of my senior year and still no offers. What are my options? What schools are still looking? Now that I have committed to being a collegiate golfer, what steps do I have to take to get cleared to play, and what rules must I follow to keep my scholarship?

TJGT's Five Lessons: The Modern

Fundamentals of Collegiate Golf Recruiting

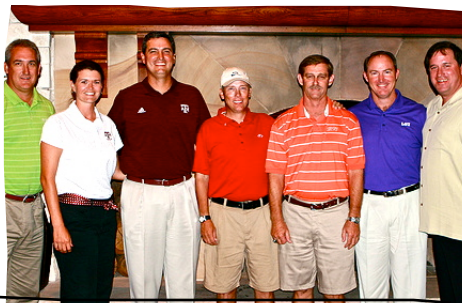

Let's face it. The collegiate golf recruiting process can be a daunting and confusing task to navigate alone. Anyone can find the answers to generic questions such as, "When can a college coach contact me in person off-campus?"* However, many of the questions that junior golfers ask don't have generic answers. For example, the answer to the BIG question, "How do I get a golf scholarship?," differs greatly from individual to individual. As parents and former coaches of collegiate golfers, the Texas Junior Golf Tour understands the roller coaster ride involved in the recruiting process and has a proven record of success in obtaining scholarships for their senior class - boys (85%) and girls (92%). Our College Bound Membership program is the best way to find YOUR answers.

Lesson #5

Be Informed

In a nutshell, "What do coaches really WANT?" Yes, college coaches are looking for smart, talented junior golfers. That's simple enough, but what other qualities do they look for in a potential recruit, and which qualities matter the most? What separates Kyle from Alex when they both shoot 72 and make good grades? The only way to find out this crucial information is to ask each coach personally and that is exactly what the TJGT has done. Our College Bound Membership program features exclusive access to monthly webinars, monthly Q & A Conference Calls, podcast library of interviews with college coaches about their recruiting strategies, college players/alumni, PGA Tour guests, golf industry executives, parents of collegiate players and many more.

Lesson #4

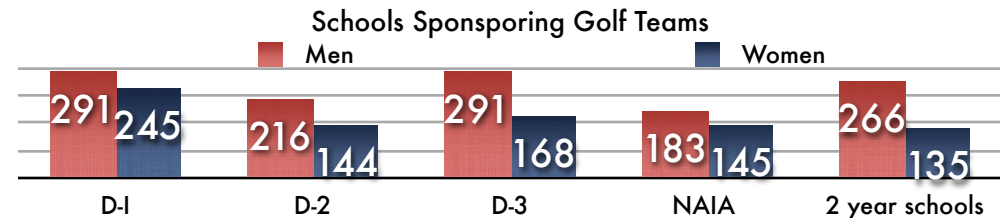

Be Prepared

Preparation is key. Would you take the SAT without studying? You could, but why risk wasting four years of hard work in high school by making a mediocre score? The stakes are simply too high. Same with junior golf. All those days practicing and junior tournaments have led up to this moment: the collegiate golf recruitment process. Let the TJGT utilize their years of experience in creating over 3500 collegiate alumni to help you take your first step. Our College Bound Membership program provides you with monthly webinars, conference calls, unlimited email support, templates for recruiting & contacting college coaches and tournament planning mentoring. CBM members also receive access to live Q & A sessions at many TJGT major events, phone support with experienced CBM staff to discuss individual needs, college coach networking on behalf of the player and on-course evaluation/counsel at selected tournaments. That way when opportunity knocks, you'll be ready.

Be Realistic, but Positive

Lesson #3

Aim to find a school that fits your needs and abilities. 2007 Master's champion, Zach Johnson played golf at Drake University. Big names don't guarantee big results. There are 1247 Men's and 837 Women's golf programs in the NCAA, NAIA, and 2-yr. schools. As a CBM member, we will help you obtain a spot on a collegiate team and a college scholarship too.

Lesson #2

Be Patient

It's stressful. No matter what. Even the summer of the senior year isn't too late for a scholarship opportunity to open up. Luckily, as a future CBM member, the TJGT networks with many programs looking to extend scholarship offers and will help you in every step of the process to make sure you achieve your dreams of playing collegiate golf!
